

Smith to hang for kidnapping

KALISPELL, Mont. (AP) — Confessed killer Ronald A. Smith got his wish in court Monday when he was sentenced to hang on May 9 for kidnapping and killing two Browning men last August.

State District Court Judge Michael Keedy sentenced Smith to death four times — on two counts of deliberate homicide and two counts of aggravated kidnapping. A packed courtroom, under tight security, heard the sentence. Relatives of Smith and the two victims were present.

The Red Deer, Alberta, man confessed in February that he kidnapped and murdered Thomas Running Rabbit Jr., 20, and Harvey Mad Man Jr., 24, Aug. 4 on the southern border of Glacier National Park.

At the same time, he asked for the death penalty. Smith said he feared for his life in prison because he had heard that the Indian population there had a "contract" out on him.

Kill, be killed

Smith contended he would either be killed or have to kill again to protect himself in prison.

Keedy emphasized that Smith's request for the death penalty was not a factor in his decision. He called it a "curious element" in the case.

"You have no respect for human life, including your own," Keedy said in passing sentence. "You are an extremely dangerous person and you represent a dangerous threat to society. By your own admission, Mr. Smith, these were atrocious, cruel and inhuman acts."

Smith took full responsibility for the shootings, saying his two companions were unaware that he planned to shoot the men.

Rodney Munro and Andre Fontaine, two other Red Deer men, were arrested with Smith and charged in the murders. Munro was scheduled to be sentenced by Keedy later on three counts of aggravated kidnapping and an escape charge. He and Smith escaped from the Flathead County Jail in January, but they were arrested close by shortly after they left the jail.

Murder charge

The murder charges against Munro were dropped in exchange for guilty pleas to the other charges. Fontaine still faces prosecution on two charges of murder and two counts of aggravated kidnapping.

The men were arrested after a six-week search led to the bodies of Running Rabbit and Mad Man. Smith has since confessed to ordering the men into the woods of U.S. 2 near Essex and shooting them.

The two men had apparently stopped to pick up the three Canadians, who were hitchhiking. Smith said he wanted to steal their car and did not want to leave any witnesses.

Youth convicted of murder, faces possible death penalty

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — A jury found 17-year-old Sean Matthews guilty Monday of first-degree murder in the jailhouse beating death of another youth who had been incarcerated for failure to pay $75 in traffic fines and court costs.

The conviction could bring Matthews the death penalty. The 4th District Court jury of seven women and five men returned the verdict near the end of its third day of deliberations.

Matthews stared down at the table in front of him as a court clerk read aloud the verdict, but otherwise showed no emotion.

The jury had asked Sunday for a transcript of testimony from three persons who witnessed the hours-long beating of Christopher Peterman, 17, at the Ada County Jail last Memorial Day. The jury received the transcript Monday morning.

Matthews was one of five 17-year-old inmates originally charged with beating Peterman to death in a juvenile cell at the jail in Boise.

Charges against one of the five were dropped last year and two others pleaded guilty to lesser charges. A fifth faces trial next month.

Matthews admitted participating in the beating but testified he struck his last blow at least 20 minutes before Peterman fell unconscious.

Asked why the beating started, Matthews said the frail, blond, blue-eyed Peterman "was saying just stupid stuff, getting on people's nerves."

Matthews said he hit Peterman at least 30 times but his cellmates — Andy Anderson and Randall McKeown — delivered more punches and also kicked the boy.

Matthews said McKeown delivered the final blows that sent Peterman reeling and smashed his head to the ground "hard, very hard . . . It was like a basketball sound, bouncing."

Clark faces new setback, doctors hunt down cause

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Concerned by a feverish Barney Clark's deteriorating kidney functions, doctors worked Monday with the artificial heart recipient to hunt down the source of a suspected infection.

University of Utah Medical Center spokeswoman Anne Brillinger said Clark remained in fair condition, but his physicians were worried about the new development.

"Dr. Clark has shown some deterioration in renal function over the past 24 hours and also has a fever," she said.

"The doctors are looking for a possible source of infection that may be contributing to these changes," Brillinger said. "They are concerned about it."

Clark's daughter-in-law, Terry Clark of Seattle, said she learned of the fever from her mother-in-law, Urs Loy Clark, late Sunday. She had visited the retired 62-year-old dentist over the weekend with Clark's son, Stephen.

"She told me last night about the fever," Terry Clark said. "I've gotten the impression he's been running a fever off and on, up and down, for the past two weeks."

"I think what everyone doesn't realize is just how sick he is," she said.

Director of Nursing Helen Kee confirmed Clark has been running a "chronic" fever intermittently for about two weeks.

"It's not real high, but it's not normal," she said. "But with this pneumonia he has had some fever, so it's hard to identify where it is coming from."

Spring is here, and so is football

By GINA CALDWELL
Staff Writer

Spring is here. Finals are coming soon. Students are out scoring grocery stores — not necessarily for the best food buy, but in search of the much-needed packing boxes necessary to take home accumulated treasures.

While the majority of us are tying up loose threads and waiting for the semester's end, 125 athletes, eight full-time coaches and LaVell Edwards are just beginning to prepare themselves for this fall's football season.

Spring football has been going on for about two weeks and will continue for 20 days, according to NCAA rules, said Edwards, head coach.

According to Edwards, this pre-season practice serves three functions:

"First, we can find out who the players are for fall. We will have only three weeks of practice before our season starts this September.

"Second, this is a teaching period. We teach technical skills and how to play under pressure.

"Third, we experiment with formations and plays.

"I feel really good about what we have done so far," Edwards said. "We have a tough season ahead of us." Besides the regular conference schedule, Baylor University and UCLA have been added to this season's calendar.

While most other schools start spring football in April or May, because of BYU's semester schedule, "we are playing in March," Edwards said.

The quarterback situation is "solid" with Steve Young returning and Robbie Bosco, a sophomore who redshirted last year, passing for the team, Edwards said.

Recruiting went well, he said. Of the 125 men on the team, about 90 percent of them will be on scholarship; another 15 to 30 players will "walk on" the team.

The two-hour practice includes stretching and agility exercises, tackle and blocking drills, offense and defense work out, and passing and running scrimmages. The team will end their spring practice with the traditional "Blue and White" (offense against defense) game on April 1 at the stadium.

Women netters line at tourney

Women's tennis team lost a meet to North Carolina on at the Louisiana State Invitational, but coach Ann Valentine said she was "pleased with the way the girls played." Valentine said, "Our girls gave it 100 percent, would have given the match a win helps us a lot," she said. The girls lost to the same team 8-1 in January. In the doubles team of Helen and Susie Hunter fought a wire, losing the sets in 7-5 breakers. Of the nine matches lasted, and the two that didn't ended in breakers. Holding and Leslie Pearce gives wins for the Cougars. Lesley Fox paired up for doubles win, and Pearce and Pearce captured the No. 1 match. The Cougars dispatched a tough team 5-4 Friday on the day of the three-day at Baton Rouge. Fox, Hunter and Pearce in singles matches to give the Cougars a 4-2 margin going into the doubles play. Then Pearce and Mulvehill topped Linda Lizzall and Debbie Hunt 6-3, 6-2 for the fifth match win and the meet victory. "It was a good LSU team that Leslie and Karen defeated," Valentine said. "Our other teams let down a bit once we'd won the match. "I was especially pleased with the authority of Tina (Holding) in beating Leslie Henry. It was the smartest I've seen her play," she said. Holding beat Henry in a straight-set 6-3, 6-1 match. "And the way Susie Hunter won her third set so decisively was gratifying," Valentine added. Hunter pulled off a 6-1, 4-6, 6-1 victory. Friday afternoon, BYU beat South Alabama 7-2, with senior veteran Holding and Christiansen dropping their singles matches for the only Cougar losses of the meet. BYU, now 9-10 for the season, has won seven of its last nine matches. The Cougars' next match will be at home Friday against Cal Poly-Pomona at 2 p.m. on the Indoor Tennis Courts.

Cougar ruggers beat Arizona, Snake River

BYU ruggers slammed Arizona 31-9 on Saturday. Wins boosted the Cougars' 10-1 and BYU received the win of beating Snake River at time in three meetings. The Cougars their first fall in 15-a-side competition, outside center for over, said, "I thought they played extremely well. They stage of our mistakes. They to win." Saturday's matchup, BYU n Seggar said, "They (the all played well. This week week (against Haggis) are the best wins we've had this y think they're going to win all championship," he said. Ormsby led BYU scorers in with one 50-yard sprint, four conversions, and one penalty kick. Thorpe Facer, Paul Meyer, Brent Foley, and Rod Nielson also scored tries in Saturday's match. Seggar said Thursday's game was more of a practice. Arizona was unable produce a full team so they picked up some second-team BYU players. Seggar said Thursday's game, "was a little ragged." He explained that BYU played down to Arizona's level. Mark Ormsby shared high scoring honors with Thorpe Facer at 16 points a piece. Ormsby scored on one try and kicked six conversions and Facer, who scored BYU's first try, made his tally on four tries. Paul Hendersen scored 11 points on two tries and dropped kicked the ball from 35 yards out through the uprights for a final BYU score of 71. Eight Cougars scored for BYU on Thursday.

USFL linemen takes long road back

LOS ANGELES (AP)—In four years, Billy Don Jackson went from UCLA football star to convict, jailed for manslaughter after a bout with drugs. Now he's back on the field, this time as a starting defensive end with the Boston Breakers of the United States Football League. And he admits it all seems a little unreal. "It was always my dream to run out on the field before thousands of people in a major league pro stadium, throw my hands in the air and say, 'I'm here, I made it, I'm ready to play,'" Jackson, 24, said in an interview with the Los Angeles Herald-Examiner. "I didn't know what to expect or how I'd react once I got on the field. Right before the team prayer, it hit me I was back in the game, realized I'd be playing again. "That moment was the greatest feeling I've had in a very long time."

Just a year ago, the 6-foot-3, 255-pound Texan faced a Los Angeles Superior Court judge after pleading no contest to a charge of voluntary manslaughter in the 1980 stabbing death of a drug dealer. Described at his trial as a functional illiterate, he served eight months of a one-year sentence for manslaughter, studying all the time to improve his reading and writing. He moved from seventh to 10th grade in his reading level and improved his writing a grade-and-a-half. Jackson's March 18th debut for the Breakers received good ratings from the coaches, particularly for his pass rush and for the enthusiasm he imparted in the whole defensive unit. "I'm not a success story yet," he said. "I'm in what I guess I would call fair shape, but I need to excel as I'm expected to, and as I expect to during the season. I just have to keep working hard. I need more repetition, more tackling, to get used to football again." Jackson's last game for UCLA was in 1979. In 1980, he participated in one practice session at San Jose State. He was scheduled to try out for the National Football League's Philadelphia Eagles on his release from jail, but when Coach Dick Vermeil resigned, the team lost interest. Jackson's agent, Steve Feldman, then contacted the Arizona Wranglers, who held Jackson's USFL rights. The Wranglers agreed to give Jackson a three-day trial, but he flunked his physical because of an old knee injury and slightly high blood pressure. Then Feldman asked UCLA football Coach Terry Donahue to put in a good word with the Boston Coach Dick Coury. "Terry called and explained things as best he could and asked me to give him a try. I have great respect for Terry—if he felt Billy could help us as a football player, he was worth a look," Coury says. "I've been very impressed with Billy. He has a great attitude and works very hard. He worked real hard on the special teams aside from playing the line. We needed more of a pass rush after the first game so we started him last week, and he played very well. "From the beginning, our only concern was whether he could help us as a player. The only thing I did was check with my owners to see if they had any problem with it." Jackson says he regrets that he didn't seek help during his involvement with drugs.

NBC's 'Special Bulletin' causes national alarm

By ROGER GILLOTT
Associated Press Writer

One viewer said she was so frightened by NBC's "Special Bulletin" that she had to take tranquilizers. Others phoned in bomb threats or fears, and some worried that a realistic drama about nuclear weapons threats could inspire real-life terrorists.

"A lot of people are scared," said telephone operator Ed Walsh at San Francisco's KRON-TV, which received 50 calls during the two-hour program's first 45 minutes. "One woman called and said 'Why do you give all this time to terrorists on TV?'"

Both before and during the show, NBC broadcast numerous warnings to viewers that the story was fictional. Even so thousands of worried viewers called TV stations around the country, although some objected to the disclaimers, saying they detracted from the drama.

The movie showed a fictional TV network responding to a threat by an anti-nuclear group aboard a tugboat in the harbor at Charleston, S.C., to detonate a bomb as powerful as the one that destroyed Hiroshima, Japan.

They demand a "ransom" that the American government disarm 964 nuclear warheads in the Charleston area.

Charleston viewers bombarded the local affiliate, WCIV-TV, with 250 phone calls during and after the program, and others called the city's police station. Police Cpl. George Volpe said many of the calls were from reporters and only "four or five" were from concerned citizens.

The Charleston station superimposed the word "fiction" on the upper left side of TV screens throughout the telecast. That sparked some angry calls from viewers who complained of "an eyesore."

But in Groves Mill, N.J., — scene of a fictional Martian invasion in Orson Welles' 1938 "War of the Worlds" radio broadcast that resulted in a panic — police dispatcher Cynthia Napolitano said all was quiet.

Chicago TV station WMAQ, which carried the program, received two bomb threats, said station spokesman Nick Aronson. One caller warned that if the program was not taken off the air in five minutes he "would blow us up," Aronson said.

A prepared statement was read to about 760 callers Sunday night, Aronson said, and the station dropped its regular news capsules between 8 p.m. and 10 p.m. CST to avoid confusing viewers with the movie.

In New York, NBC spokesman Curt Block said the network received more than 700 calls — nearly two-thirds of them critical.

In Portland, Ore., a blind woman called the NBC affiliate, station KGW-TV, because she could not see the disclaimers printed on the screen and was worried, a station spokesman said.

To simulate network coverage of a breaking story, the show cut back and forth between news anchor people in New York City and reporters in Charleston, Congress, the White House and the Pentagon.

It interspersed that with "live feeds" from terrorists aboard the tugboat, where a TV news crew was being held hostage.

The show's director and co-producer, Ed Zwick, said he was disappointed at the disclaimers peppered through the program — including superimposing the word "dramatization" on the screen during the most sensational scenes.

'Strokes' role earns Nancy rave reviews from Ronald

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan might have a future as an actress, her husband was quoted Saturday night as saying after watching her in her first paid role in 26 years.

The president and his wife watched the television show "Diff'rent Strokes," in which Mrs. Reagan made an eight-minute appearance, in the living room of Aspen Lodge, their quarters at the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., according to assistant White House press secretary Mark Weinberg.

"I thought she was great and I think the program will be very effective," Weinberg quoted the president as saying.

"I think more television shows should contribute to the cause by directing shots to this subject," the president said. "I tried to tell her she might have a future in that business."

Mrs. Reagan was a movie actress when she and her husband, a former actor, were married in 1952. Her last movie was one made with him in 1957, "Hellcats of the Navy."

The first lady's appearance on the show Saturday boosted the audience of "Diff'rent Strokes" to 32.5 million viewers, Nancy Reagan's press secretary said Monday.

Press secretary Sheila Tate, telephoning reporters to tell the ratings, said the average audience of the weekly show is 26.3 million viewers.

The first lady "was thrilled" by the ratings, Tate said, quoting Mrs. Reagan as saying, "I hope they all like it."

Tate said the White House switchboard lines were jammed immediately after the broadcast and no negative calls were received.

Fictional attack draws local fire

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Between 15 and 20 alarmed viewers called the local NBC affiliate here to make sure a fictional movie about a nuclear attack by terrorists wasn't true.

The program "Special Bulletin" was shown as though it were being reported by a network television news team.

The Salt Lake callers were among hundreds nationwide who called NBC affiliates to find out whether terrorists were actually threatening to destroy the city of Charleston, S.C., with a nuclear device.

"There are plenty of people fooled," said Dean Paynter, KUTV news producer. "There were plenty wanting to know if it was real."

Frequently throughout the program, announcers advised viewers that the story was fiction.

Trombone Choir, Symphonic Band to 'blend' today

By CAMI MATTSON

The Symphonic Band will join the Trombone Choir in a performance today at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall HFAC.

There is a technique in blending the variety of instrumental sounds from the large, 80-member band, said Daniel Bachelder, director of the band. "The sound is balanced from the bottom up," Bachelder said.

The lower-sounding instruments form the foundation and the higher-sounding instruments tune into them, he said. "It works like a pyramid."

This method is used because the sounds from the high frequency instruments come through the loudest and if it is not balanced properly, the high-sounding instruments will dominate.

Conducting techniques also help balance the sound, Bachelder said. "Conducting is not specifically for timing. It is to express the sound you want" from the band members.

The conductor must look at the musical score, judge what the band is to do and "match what he hears with what he sees."

The students must listen and tune their instruments to the instruments next to them and across from them, Bachelder said. It is a constant adjustment.

"If a band member is listening only to himself, he won't be in tune — that is a guarantee," he said.

The Symphonic Band will occasionally present a free concert in an outside quad, Bachelder said. "We like to take music to the people."

The band plays a variety of music from marches to baroque transcriptions to the familiar tunes of musicals, he said.

Many members of the Symphonic Band are also members of other musical groups like Synthesis, Cougar Band and the Wind Symphony.

These students are involved with many groups because they are dedicated to the cause of music and they love to play, he said.

Some of the band members are music majors and others use their music as an outlet from their other studies, he said.

BYU's band program offers a spot for everyone who wants to join, Bachelder said.

In the past, a third band has been started to allow all interested students to perform. "But if their heart is not in it, they won't be in it," he said.

The Trombone Choir is also directed by Bachelder. This group consists of eight students who have been handpicked and organized in the group by the faculty, he said.

The Trombone Choir will perform in the second half of the concert.

It wasn't electric, and it wasn't florescent, but the block 'Y' decorated the valley in its light Friday night for the Mormon Arts Ball, thanks to the Intercollegiate Knights, spiritual guardians of the letter on the mountainside.

Quest dancer Bill Evans present solo concert

Evans, a dancer of many talents, will perform a solo concert today at 8 p.m. in 185 RE, directed by Pat Debenham, director of the Dancempany.

Quest resident for the modern dance, Evans will not only perform in concert, but will teach and demonstrate during his two-day at BYU, Debenham said.

Evans will also restage a choreographic work, "Visions of Willow Bay," for modern dancers who will perform the piece at the modern dance concert in April.

Professional

As a dance professional, Evans has performed throughout the United States since 1965. He has also performed in his own choreographed works at several festivals throughout the United States.

Evans has been a member of Utah's Repertory Dance Theater and is also a former faculty member at the University of Utah.

In 1975, Evans founded the Bill Evans Dance Company, a national touring company, and a dance company school.

Training levels

Evans' school offers training in modern and jazz dance on professional, pre-professional and recreational levels. His school also includes a program for children that offers creative and modern dance techniques.

Although Evans has received recognition from his vast performing experiences, his touring company and his school of dance, he has also received significant attention because of his theory and technique of training dancers.

Women lead college men in numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — College students are more likely to be women and to be older than in years past, the Census Bureau reported today. The number of women in college jumped 63 percent from 1972 to 1981, the bureau said. At the same time the number of men attending college grew by 12 percent.

The bureau said that there are now 108 college women for every 100 male students, compared to a ratio of 74 women to 100 men in 1972.

Traditional age

The study also reported that half are over the traditional college age of 21, and 36 percent are 25 or older.

Women make up half of undergraduate students, 45 percent of graduate students and the majority of part-time and junior-college students.

Nursery school

The number of nursery school students was about the same as in 1980, but well above 1970 levels, thanks to increasing enrollment of 3- and 4-year-olds.

The number of students in elementary schools is down 18 percent from its 1970 peak, and the high school student population has declined 9 percent from its peak in 1970-71.

The percentage of elementary and secondary students in private schools is about the same as it was a decade ago — 11 percent.

The proportion of young blacks who have dropped out of school has declined from 26 percent in 1967 to 19 percent today. The dropout rate for whites remained at about 16 percent.

A MESSAGE FROM ASBYU

WE WANT YOU FOR AN ACADEMIC OPINION SURVEY!

ASBYU is conducting an ACADEMIC OPINION SURVEY. One purpose of this project is to provide more information about courses and instructors than is presently available in the BYU general catalog. The results of the student survey will be edited and published in a student opinion course summary catalog, an information booklet that will be made available to the student body.

The type of information we need is positive and descriptive — your recommendations of outstanding courses and instructors, and what you wished you knew about the course and instructor before you took the class. Please feel free to complete a survey for any course you have completed; however, we would like to emphasize G.E. and recently offered courses.

Surveys can be pick-up and returned at drop boxes located at the south end of the library, the Step-down Lounge and from the receptionist on the fourth floor of the Wilkinson Center. Please fill out and return these surveys by April 1, 1983.

P.S. If not enough surveys are filled out and returned then we will not be able to provide this important information to the student body so please support us in this endeavor.

PLEASE COMPLETE THE SURVEY FOR EACH OF US BY: ONE CLASS COMPLETED FALL SEMESTER 1982

PLEASE PRINT NAME AND COURSE NUMBER. These will be used for identification and will be returned and destroyed. Do not write on this survey. Please do not write on this survey. Please do not write on this survey.

Park supervisor will give lecture on management

The diversified background and educational experience of a parks and recreation supervisor will be discussed by Henry Bonner in his lecture today at 7:30 p.m. in 321 ELWC.

Bonner, 29, is a contract supervisor for the Department of Clark County Parks and Recreation for the Parkdale Community Center in the Las Vegas area.

His education covers a variety of areas. He has a bachelor's degree in sociology and anthropology with a minor in French and a concentration in black studies from Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio. Bonner is also a candidate for a master's degree of science in outdoor recreation at the University of Michigan.

He has had experience acting in and directing a number of plays. Bonner has participated in theater events, musicals, and dance groups. His extensive traveling has also aided in his diverse education.

Provo's Excelsior Hotel chosen for convention

The new Excelsior Hotel in Provo will be the convention site for the annual Rocky Mountain College Press Association's 1984 convention, said Thomas Griffiths, coordinator of the broadcast session in the Communications Department.

Students from 14 states submitted convention proposals and candidates to be elected as the association's president and convention coordinator. Griffiths said. The president is elected on the basis of the campaign and the convention proposal.

Cynthia Perkovich, a junior from Kalspeil, Mont., majoring in broadcast news, was elected as this year's RMCPA president at the convention in Santa Fe, N.M., last weekend.

At-A-Glance

All submissions for At-A-Glance must be received by 1 p.m. the day before the publication. All items must be double-spaced and typed on an 8 1/2 by 11 inch sheet of paper. Items will not be published for more than three consecutive days, and submissions of a commercial nature, or which advertise activities resulting in remuneration to anyone, will not be accepted for publication.

Cable arguments strong either way

The recent Utah legislative session closed with the passage of controversial Senate Bills 308 and 309 on cable television. SB 308 prohibits distribution of material which is "harmful to minors" over cable TV. SB 309 prohibits distribution of indecent material over cable TV and defines indecent material in detail.

The constitutionality of both bills is a major concern for many in the state, including the newly formed group, Citizens for Everyone's Freedom. This group presented Gov. Matheson a petition last Thursday bearing over 50,000 signatures and urging his veto of the bills on constitutional grounds. Gerry Snow, CFEF chairwoman, complained last week that the real indecency in this issue is the money Utah will waste for an inevitable court challenge.

As representatives of the people of Utah, legislators have a responsibility faithfully to represent their constituents on any issue. Utah lawmakers can be congratulated for doing this effectively. Although 50,000 signatures urging a veto of the cable TV bills demonstrate that many in the state adamantly disagree with lawmakers, they are evidently in the minority. Legislators have acted according to the majority of constituent opinion, whether or not those opinions reflect logical thinking about the constitutionality of the issue. These opinions represent the contemporary community standard at hand, a standard that is important in determining the acceptability of media material available to a particular community.

A significant distinction between broadcasting and cablecasting must be made. Broadcasting over public airwaves is separate from and subject to different laws than cablecasting, which must be purchased and requires special equipment.

If the control of cable television rests in the finger of every subscriber, the power to turn off the set—why does the Federal Communications Commission concern itself with a rule about indecency on cable television? Title 47 of the Code of Federal Regulations Section 76.215 states that no cable television system operator may transmit material that is obscene or indecent. Granted, FCC regulations are different from actual laws enacted by Congress, yet a regulation on federal books suggests a concern at the national level for indecency over cable television. And rightfully so.

The Supreme Court continues to protect a community's right to define what it will or will not accept in terms of indecent material, within the context of overarching definitions of indecency by the Court. Utah lawmakers have acted within the spirit of this right in the sense that they have represented the wishes of their constituents. However, Utah legislators have passed two bills they knew may be "constitutionally flawed" in the areas of First Amendment rights, right of privacy, interstate commerce and equal protection under the law. Thus, those opposing regulation of cable TV argue that the legislators were unwilling to protect the U.S. Constitution, unwilling to spend state funds wisely.

Both sides in this controversy are making persuasive cases.

Letters to the Editor

Women are OK

Editor: In rebuttal to the remarks presented by Rocky Nelson on March 15 concerning the creativity of women on our campus, I would like to say a few words.

I applaud the literary technique used by Kristi Chandler and Kathy Johnson. What better way to refute the self-centered, not to mention cliché, remarks expressed by Jeff Robinson and Scott Scharenberg concerning dress and behavioral standards, than to do so with the antagonists' own words?

Gentlemen, are we so egotistical that we ask only what the ladies can do to please us, rather than what we can do for them? I am continually impressed by the way our ladies dress, especially when I compare it with the faded Levi's and old T-shirts I so often see worn by the males on campus.

We must, however, give credit to Mr. Nelson for his attentive reading, for as he says, "I think I see a pattern."

Steve Cole, Puyallup, Wash.

Let's be mature

Editor: I was disturbed by Rocky Nelson's comments. He states, "Letters to the Editor were meant to be original in thought and content." I agree with his statement, but I question his approach. I wonder if he read his own letter. He degrades the mental capabilities of women, especially of the women who expressed their thoughts in regards to a previous letter. Nelson's letter commented on "ideas previously presented" also, and seemed to contradict his own statement.

In writing this letter, I am very probably guilty of the same thing; however, I feel there is a message here for the students of this campus. We should be original thinkers. We should present our views and provide substantial support of them to enable other original thinkers to consider them. There is an infinite amount of learning and sharing that can take place during our university years. Letters to the Editor is a mode of communication, a method of promoting learning. We should allow people, men and women, the right and privilege to express their thoughts and opinions. Let us not judge or even reply to others unless we can uplift and enlighten others. This cannot be accomplished by generalizing that women are not capable of new ideas, that men must wear ties and socks to be a man, or that women should wear skirts to satisfy the desires of a few men on campus. All of these views may be perfectly valid, but they should be presented in a mature, intelligent, non-stereotyping fashion.

Elizabeth R. Rowe, Savanna, Ill.

Editor selfish?

Editor: When I read Julie Merrell's Letter from the Editor in Monday's issue, her independence-at-all-costs attitude bothered me. I remembered a quote describing "selfishness masquerading as individuality" being common in our society. Many of us would like to be as financially and emotionally independent as Julie. I would like to be. It's easier to rely only on yourself. You don't have to live up to any giver's expectations, you don't run the risk of having to reciprocate any kindness, and you owe no gratitude. You can claim all glory for your own successes and put yourself in judgment over others. I found her attitude cold and childish, qualities I thought editors should avoid. The mature individual doesn't hail herself as a martyr or standard for judgment. She realizes that broad generalities are crutches and accepts the mutual give and take, and thus responsibility, in all relationships.

A slam on Stan?

Editor: In today's "Universe Opinion" you stated that, "Those selecting the new coach... need not hire a basketball coach from a small high school in Southern Utah because no one else will take the job." I feel it necessary to respond to this comment. I can't imagine why you would make such a statement. To me this came as a direct "slam" at Coach Stan Watts. Perhaps a reminder is appropriate at this time. Coach Watts came from a small Southern Utah high school to be head coach at BYU. His years of service here were long and glorious. He, more than anyone else, put BYU basketball on the world map. Were you really belittling Coach Watts and his accomplishments, or was it merely a slip of the pen?

Mark S. Clarke, College of Physical Education

Proud of protest

Editor: I was impressed by the BYU students who recently demonstrated in opposition to a nuclear arms build-up. While I am aware that there were many students who favored a nuclear arms freeze, I did not realize that they had the courage to publicly express themselves in such an unsympathetic environment as downtown Provo, Utah. I understand that although many opponents to the freeze heeded and attempted to provoke the students, they conducted themselves with exemplary dignity.

I believe that it is a credit to the university that it has helped to train the mature, concerned individuals who participated in the demonstration. Regardless of our personal views on the nuclear freeze issue, we should be proud of our fellow students' behavior.

Kendall W. Stiles, Akron, Ohio

Leave Dixie alone

Editor: Everyone knows what J. Golden Kimball thought of Southern Utah. He once told a Southern Utah conference audience that if he had the choice of being in Southern Utah in August or in hell, he'd prefer to be in hell.

Now the Universe editorialized on March 17 that the new basketball coach must not be from the booties of Southern Utah.

This insightful observation is to be applauded. It ranks up there with, "Can you think of a good one out of Judea?" Everyone knows that there are too many folks from Southern Utah in positions of responsibility at BYU and elsewhere to allow us to stomach anti-Southern hayseed.

Unfortunately, the selection of a new basketball coach may be somewhat influenced by some of those Southern Utah escapees such as BYU President Jeffrey Holland and his Virgin River sidekick, President Rolfe Kerr. You wouldn't think they'd consult another Southern Utah ridge runner, Gov. Scott Matheson? Heaven forbid!

Whatever we do when we select a new basketball coach, don't get me wrong, the Southern Utah river rats. They talk funny, but have no sense of humor.

CONSTITUTIONS WERE MADE TO BE BROKEN!

Pull head from sand to fill bags

Stop worrying about California falling into the ocean. Provo is about to slip into Utah Lake.

People are at this very moment shoveling sand into sand bags to prevent the flood waters from eventually gurgling over everything in sight.

With the release of the movie "Gandhi," there must be hundreds of BYU students inspired to save a tiny country or even a small continent. Why not start by saving a city? All great leaders must start somewhere. The organization to accomplish such a miracle is in place. Provo has begun to prepare for the spring floods. Part of that preparation includes the filling 100,000 sandbags.

True, some BYU students do not care about Provo—and some constantly criticize the city for not catering to their every need. But many others have volunteered to join the battle against the advancing flood waters.

For days now BYU wards have been sacking sand. The 106th ward, led by Bishop Kenneth Packer, is an example worth following. Recently 106th warders rolled up their sleeves and packed 1,200 bags of sand in three hours. No one is sure yet, but that could be a record.

The project, coordinated by Provo Parks and Recreation Department, has been in progress for some time and has as of late received reinforcements, thanks to BYU Outdoor Unlimited.

James Loveless, assistant manager of BYU's outdoor rental shop, discovered there was no organized effort to get BYU students involved and decided to start one of his own. He asked ASBYU Community Services to co-sponsor the effort. This group would have helped, but the timing of the request was bad: Loveless called when the fourth floor was involved in its own flood, a flood of campaign rhetoric that covers BYU each spring.

Called bishops

Thus Loveless and friends went to work on the project alone. They sent a letter and made a phone call to every bishop on campus. The plan was to include each ward in the Provo City goal of filling the 100,000 bags before spring floods become destructive.

Loveless reports the Parks Department has been "overwhelmed" by the response. The original intent was to have 40 people help on each of two shifts every weeknight. The plan proposed to pull 10 people from five wards each shift to make up the 40. However, Loveless reports some wards "have been hurt and abused because they wanted to provide the whole 50."

Leland Gamette, executive assistant to the mayor, reports that students together with others in the community have filled more than 5,000 sandbags.

"If we follow through with the plan we have now," Gamette says, "the majority of Provo will be protected."

Gamette predicts the 100,000 sandbags the city will stockpile to fight the predicted "disaster" will be the key to saving public utilities such as sewer water and power as well as the airport. He does not see the sandbag project as "someone running out to stick their finger in a dike."

Help sparse

But, unfortunately there are some holes in the sandbag project that need to be plugged. On some nights help is sparse because some wards are not coming through.

As unbelievable as this may sound, some of the bishops Loveless contacted were not willing to help—because no directives had been sent down through stake channels.

If these religious channels remain plugged, parts of Provo could see a baptism that will not leave the city clean and pure. Surely this is merely a communications problem.

Church leaders, Send the directives! And for those of us who must wait for home teachers to slosh our way—forget them. Although the project goes better when groups are filling the bags, anyone is welcome, anytime, to help. This is one time when much good can be accomplished with a little effort.

Often in the past, relations between the home town folk and the youth of Zion here at BYU have not been the best. Maybe now some of us will take the opportunity to drown those problems in murky waters of Utah Lake.

—Steve Eaton

Departments too big for britch

At a large university like BYU, students frequently complain they are just a number—a statistic on the Administration's Office computer or another body in the crowded room of an American Heritage class.

And there may be some truth to the statement. Some departments on campus have 700 to 1,000 students enrolled as majors. Many "popular" departments have grown so many students were admitted into the university. And yet there are still some departments with less than 200 students registered as majors.

Students majoring in subjects within small departments may have advantages over other students. Not only do they receive more personalized instruction from the professors of their classes, but the department office staff seems to give them more help and information as they near graduation.

Many students do not realize the vast numbers enrolled in a department until graduation drives near. Dr. Milton Smith, undergraduate advisor for business management, said many students are not aware of the program until graduation comes and they want a reference for placement. In large departments, the student is unable to use any of his professors because the classes were so large the teacher does not remember him.

Professors in large classes seem impersonal to many students. Often the students spend hours in line outside a teacher's office only to be whisked in and out almost as fast as customers in a fast food restaurant.

Students enrolled in smaller classes within the less popular departments benefit from the extra attention they receive. The average class size in a small department is 20 students; the class size in the larger departments is more than double—40 and 60 students.

Some department advisors class sizes are larger than what are comfortable with, but the Fight the fever!

There is an affliction sweeping population of students at BYU Young University. It re epidemic proportions during t bright sunshine and warm tures. Most officials agree: Fever is back!

The symptoms of Spring Fever difficult to detect. In its initial it may manifest itself as a dreamy gaze out the window one sits in a statistics class. MU may find themselves wanting t their practice rooms and play ovens out on the patio of the Fine Arts Center. Students gineering may get an uncon urge to go out and build a bird students in business market develop an incredible itch to pate in a spring fever discour. In its most advanced stages Fever leaves students lying lifeless on the lawns of the uni. Sometimes alone, but often i one sees these victims of th scattered from one end of ca the other whenever the sun g bright and the thermometer s much above 60 degrees. Th the fever often runs in the nomen that still baffles most tists.

Fortunately, victims of spr ever never just fall over witho ing. First they get an uncon desire to walk out onto the gr just sit down. (If you find yo this situation your only hop force yourself to get up and ke ing until you can get indoors o sun.)

After a period (varying w individual they feel themse daily reclining until they a their backs, or, in the most stages, face down in the gra victims will often stay in the tions for hours. Those with t severe cases are not able to consciousness until the su down. They get up and v around, still in something of until they can find their way.

If you have a friend or me your family who begins to sh the signs of Spring Fever, i thing to do is get them ind immediately. Then get them to textbook and start reading their assignments. If they d this on their own, read th paragraphs to them. This b ring them back to the real w dually and without too may side effects.

If the textbook treatme they will most likely need treatment. After getting th doors remind them of the t have coming up tomorrow or page term paper that was due day. You may need to threat with flunking out of school o rning the rash of the most fa versity professor if the earlie fail to bring them around.

When the epidemic reach high levels that the lawns o are overcrowded with these students there is only one th for the survivors to do—I rain!
